CARD OF THANKS.
Words utterly fail to express our gratitude for the almost unnumbered acts of kindness and generosity and expressions of sympathy shown in our sorrow. We feel that the community mourns with us and while sympathy cannot restore the one who has gone from us it does a long way in helping us to bear our burden. In this most unsatisfactory way we wish to try to thank each and every one who has tried so hard to share and to lighten our burden.

He produced flags of all nations from an empty box, made money appear from out of the air, turned flag all colors with a wave of the hand, and did a great many other tricks with cards, water and billiard balls. The next entertainment will be given at the opera house, March 16th, by the Boston Carnival Co.

NUMBER 7. FEBRUARY 18, 1910, NORWAY, MAINE. VOLUME XII.

OXFORD LODGE, NO. 18, F. & A. M. BLOCK.

Norway Municipal Court.
WM. F. JONES, JUDGE.
Henry Rollins of Lynn, Mass., was before Judge Jones, Monday, for trying to defraud an inn keeper of his board bill. Rollins and another fellow came from Lynn and worked in the shoe shop a week, when they decided to leave and not bother about paying their board bill. But just before boarding the train Sheriff Bicknell appeared on the scene and arrested Rollins, and the other fellow returned and settled his account.
In court Rollins pleaded guilty, and was found guilty and fined five dollars and costs of $9.58. The fine was remitted, he paid costs and was discharged.

Mr. Cole married Sarah White of Naples on Aug. 15, 1870. She survives him with one daughter, who is married and lives at home. Mr. Cole was one of a family of 11 children, one brother and four sisters surviving: Mrs. Mary Smith of Lincolnton, Mrs. Sabina H. Play for the Base Ball Association.
"A Woman's Honor" was the name of the play which was given at the Opera House, Friday evening, under the personal direction of W. H. Whedan for the benefit of the new Base Ball association, which was organized last fall. There was a very large attendance and the play was well presented by local talent.
The opening scene was at Glenn Mansion, New York city. Robert Glenn, H. D. Atkins, was found to be in a stringent circumstance but if his daughter Olive, Mary Chaffin, married General Mark Lester, a very rich man, W. H. Whedan, instead of her true love, Gilbert Hall, M. D., J. Wendell Flanders, he would be saved from financial ruin. Olive's sister Sally, Vivian A. Dingley, appears on the scene and is much carried away with a "likely young fellow" by the name of Gregory Grimes, Walter S. Chandler, and finally after considerable persuasion she became his charming bride and the head of the family.
Time passes, and Olive gives up her lover and marries Mr. Lester and goes to the Isle of Santa Cruz, but is not happy with the man she married. After a short time Mr. Lester falls sick and is carried by the physicians, Dr. Garcia, G. Williams, and Gilbert Hall, M. D., that he was being poisoned. All suspicion rested on his wife but at the last moment the guilty one, his half brother, Pedro Mendez, Clifton A. McAllister, was caught and Olive freed from all suspicion. Pedro's wife, Maria, was Mrs. B. F. Pillsbury, and Ebenezer, the colored servant who did not always hear just right was Harold Anderson.
The actors each did some very good acting and they must have put a lot of work into the play to gain the results in such a short time.
Stearns' orchestra furnished music before the play and between acts.

"In a Bad Way"

Many a Norway Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out; Becomes lame, weak or aching; When urinary troubles set in; Your kidneys are "in a bad way." Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. Here is local evidence to prove it:

M. M. Kilgore, Danforth St., Norway, Me., says: "I do not think there is a kidney remedy on the market as effective as Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered from backache and pains through my loins. My kidneys were badly disordered and the secretions passed irregularly. At times my back was so lame and sore that I could scarcely stand. I did not rest well at night and felt miserable in every way. At last I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply from Stone's drug store. This remedy cured me and I have been well since. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house at all times and recommend them whenever I hear anyone complaining of kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Editor ADVERTISER:—I will endeavor, in a few words as possible, to give you a short sketch of some of the things that I have seen, and some of the trips that I have made since my arrival in California, two months ago.

According to the "oldest inhabitant," this has been the coldest winter ever known in California. For about ten days, the first of the year, it froze nearly every day and one morning it was down to 22 above zero. But all this time, the orange trees are said to be uninjured, although in some localities, fifteen to twenty per cent. of the oranges have dropped from the trees.

Hot winds last June caused much of the fruit to drop, and consequently the orange crop in California will not be an over abundant one. I should judge that the lemon crop was good. I am told that lemons are picked every month in the year, and that early oranges are picked too green, in order to get the market. The frost has ruined the winter supply of tomatoes, strawberries and raspberries, but today I passed a large field of green peas a foot high and in full bloom, and the truck-gardens are full of home grown vegetables which are delivered at the door by the wagons of the market men.

One accustomed to the rigors of a northern winter, can hardly realize that this is winter, for with ripe fruit hanging from trees, flowers blooming and vegetables growing in the garden, and meadow larks singing, it seems more like a day in June than one of the long cold winter days.

I spent one day at the Aviation field, and saw the "flying boats" perform some of their most wonderful feats of navigating the air. Paulhan, Curtis, Willard and Hamilton were there, and proved conclusively that the conquest of the air is near, and in the near future, aerial navigation will be as safe and popular as auto riding is today.

I have made one trip to Long Beach, one of California's all-the-year-round pleasure resorts, where I visited with some of my old Iowa and South Dakota friends. Another trip that I made was to Redondo Beach, another of Southern California's noted pleasure points, where I gathered moonstones along the pebbly shore and watched the great waves roll in from out the big broad ocean. Redondo Beach, Long Beach, Santa Monica, Ocean Park and Venice are all thriving and popular beach cities, and although twenty to twenty-five miles away from Los Angeles will, no doubt, before many years become a part of greater Los Angeles with all their modern conveniences by a splendid system of electric roads.

San Pedro, 25 miles away, with its magnificent harbor and immense lumber trade is already a part of the future metropolis of California.

Pasadena, the home of the millionaire, as well as the laboring man, is a beautiful city adjoining Los Angeles. It is noted the world over for its yearly tournament of roses upon New Year's day. This year the show was a grand success. The roses were all from Pasadena, and other events were postponed on account of the bad condition of the roads, owing to the heavy rains.

The Clawson ostrich farm is one of the sights to be seen. A admission of twenty-five cents is charged and a guide accompanies the large number of visitors through the grounds. I think there are three large ostrich farms in California, and the raising of these valuable birds on a commercial scale is getting to be an important industry in the State. Pasadena is a city of about 30,000 population and with its mild climate and its immense and popular hotels is a favorite tourist resort. It is also noted for the large number of its churches, the high moral standing of its people, and its freedom from the saloon, which it has never tolerated.

Tropico, where I am now stopping, joins Los Angeles on the north and lays between the latter city and Glendale. Glendale valley is one of the beauty spots of Southern California, is high and dry and is surrounded by high hills and mountains. The population of Tropico is about 1,000, that of Glendale about 8,000. The Seventh Day Adventists have one of their finest sanatoriums located there, which speaks well for the place as a tourist resort and health home.

Here in Tropico my nephew, Henry Burbank, and his mother are building a new modern cottage of the bungalow style as they call them here. It is but two blocks from the electric car station and near church, store and post-office, and in a fine neighborhood made up of more modern cottages. They have decided to make California their home, and if they had looked the whole world over they could not have found a more beautiful spot in which to make their home. Yours truly, JOSEPH ANDREWS by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a ringing sound or impairment of hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh of the Eustachian tube. Send for our Little Book, "How to Cure Deafness," which contains full particulars. Name of Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 7c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Library at Bryant's Pond.

Next to the Grange hall in Bryant's Pond is the new library, 25x40 feet besides a rear annex, which was begun last fall and is now nearing completion. The interior finish will soon be done and the dedication will take place this spring. The town has no public library now, that connected with the Grange being the only semi-public one available. The new library was made possible by the generous Mr. Elmer, a resident of the town, who left $2,000 for the building and $4,000 for the books, the town to stand the operating expenses. The design for the library is effective, the outside being painted white with green shingled roof, a comfortable front porch with seats and a big oak door at the entrance. Inside, the finish is of cypress. Besides the delivery room there will be a well-lighted reading room with its fireplace and the stack room and store room.

Why He Stopped Work.

"Op'll work no more for that man Do-lan?"

"An' why?"

"Shure, an' 'tis on account av a remark he made."

"An' phwat was that?"

"Says he, 'Casey,' says he, 'ye're discharged.'"

PARIS HILL.

At Paris Hill workmen are busy repairing the home of Gen. Adm. H. H. W. Lyon, U. S. N., retired. He will make Paris Hill his permanent home. Unlike most sailors the admiral says he wants to get as far from the sea as possible. He is best remembered for his fearless conduct at the time of the hurricane in March, 1876, 1890, when three American and three German warships were driven ashore with great loss of life. He was executive officer of Adm. Kimberley's flagship at the time.

Gen. Horatio C. King of Brooklyn, N. Y., is considering the erection in Paris Hill of some suitable memorial to his father, the late Hon. Horatio King, who as a young man was associated with Hannibal Hamlin in the publication of the Jeffersonian. Horatio King was born in Paris in 1811. In 1830 he went to Washington as a clerk in the Post-office department, and was gradually promoted until he became postmaster general in the Buchanan administration. After his retirement he has government employment as a commissioner to carry into effect the emancipation law in the District of Columbia, and was for many years secretary of the National Monument Association. He died in Washington, May 20, 1897, at the age of 85 years, beloved and honored.

How to Make a Refrigerator.

For a homemade refrigerator take two large wooden boxes, the second one about two inches smaller on all sides. Bore a one inch hole in both, correspondingly to give drainage and ventilation. Fill up the space under the boxes with powdered charcoal or coal ashes. Put the inner box in place and fill up all the space with the same. Fix on the lids to both boxes to fit tightly with iron hinges. Leather ones can be substituted. Fasten with straps of leather as lock and key. Put shelves on each side of the inner box, using cleats. Leave a place in center for the ice. A zinc lining or one of felt would improve the inner box. A rack made of lathing can be laid at the bottom for the ice to rest on. Legs can be added to the outer box by putting pieces of wood at each corner, and the drainage and ventilation will be improved.

How to Make Furniture Polish.

Three parts linseed oil, one part spirits turpentine and one-third part muriatic acid make an excellent furniture polish that will remove all marks. Apply this with a piece of old soft cloth, rub it thoroughly into the surface of the wood and wipe perfectly dry. You will find old cotton stocking legs excellent polishers. This polish removes every blemish, save scratches, and it covers the slight ones, making them less noticeable. A very dirty piece of furniture can first be washed and when perfectly dry the above polish will restore the natural gloss and bring out the grain of the wood.

Young Folks LINCOLN'S KIND HEART.

How the Great War President befriended a Boy.
In 1840 R. R. Randall, who later in life became a prominent man in Nebraska, began learning the printing business in the Springfield (Ill.) Journal office. Arrived in town, he went directly to the office, taking his trunk, a very small affair, with him. The "dog cabin" enthusiasm was at its height, and the day he arrived the Whigs of Chicago came in, bringing their luggage, and men and luggage "put up" at the Journal office. When their great convention adjourned the Chicago delegation departed, carrying with them by mistake the little trunk of the new apprentice boy.

When the youngster discovered his loss (it was his first misfortune), far from home and friends, lonesome and alone, he sat himself on the sidewalk and bewailed his lot.

A benevolent looking gentleman came along when his grief was at its height. Picking his hand on Dick's head, he said:

"What is the matter, my son?"
"Matter enough," said the boy. "I've lost my trunk."

"How did you lose it?" the kind hearted stranger again queried.
"I put it in the front office, and then Chicago fellows must a-took it."

"Well," continued the tall gentleman, "don't cry. I'll see if I can get it back for you."

Taking the name of the boy and a description of the trunk, the man departed. Within ten days the missing property was returned, and Dick Randall's heart was made happy.

The stranger was Abraham Lincoln.

Le Singe (the monkey) is a popular game among young girls who enjoy a hearty laugh upon one of the opposite sex. In fact, it is really a practical joke. The monkey is the boy selected to leave the room. When he is called back again perfect silence reigns among the whole company. Puzzled by this serious attitude, he naturally asks, "What is the matter?" They repeat in chorus, "What is the matter?" The monkey probably will say, "I don't understand" which is chorused after him, and every remark he makes or question he asks is thus repeated until he sees the joke. Of course he accepts the gulling good naturedly.

A Real Toy Telephone.
Obtain two empty cocoa tins, take the lids off and bore a hole through the bottom of each tin. Now take a piece of thick string long enough to reach across the room and put one end through each hole and knot it. If one holds one tin to the ear and some one whispers into the other tin from as far away as the string goes he can be heard quite clearly, like a real telephone.

Leatherback Turtle.
The largest turtle is the leatherback, which has been known to weigh 1,000 pounds. These sea creatures live to a great age. They cannot be kept alive in captivity, a fact that was proved some time ago, when one of them was received at the New York aquarium. This animal weighed 800 pounds and lived only twenty-two days, which was a record.

$1,000,000 TO FIGHT A WORM!

A million dollars has been contributed by John D. Rockefeller for the extermination of the Hook-Worm.

Scientists have now proven that the pale, anaemic condition and listless inaction of hundreds of thousands of Southern people is caused by an intestinal worm.

The Hook-Worm is only one of fifty species of Worms that are known to infest the human intestines. Many cases of stomach troubles, blood impoverishment and general debility and weakness are caused by Worms.

Dr. John F. True of Auburn, Me., was fifty years in advance of his time. He recognized this in 1851 and gave to the world Dr. True's Elixir, which positively Expels Worms.

Whenever a laxative is needed, Dr. True's Elixir should be taken. It is not only The Best Tonic Laxative ever devised, but it absolutely expels all animal life (worms) from the system. Worms cannot exist where Dr. True's Elixir is taken.

Instead of pills, syrups, or cathartic tablets, why not take Dr. True's Elixir? It fulfills everything that is asked of a laxative and also insures the expulsion from your system of all pernicious animal life, if any exists there.

Children, especially, are frequently sickly, peevish and fretful from no other cause than worms. Dr. True's Elixir makes them healthy, strong and well.

Many a man finds himself listless and without energy; does not know what is the matter with him. Cannot seem to put any force into the day's work; has no vim. A few days' treatment with Dr. True's Elixir will correct these conditions.

The way snow is coming the loggers will get enough. They say there is 3 1/2 feet in the woods. They lay it to Halley's Comet switching its tail this way.

The house of George Osgood took fire, Thursday night, which caused the family quite a scare. Mr. Osgood, who is over 90, got up sometime in the night and put some wood in the stove and by some means hauled out some coals on to the floor which took fire, burning through the floor onto one of the sleepers which it partly burnt off. The fire was discovered by his grandson who smelt the smoke and found the fire which took ten pails of water to put out.

Joseph Barnett and family were given a pleasant surprise, the 8th, when three brothers, John Barnett of Colbrook, N. H.; Albert Barnett of Lyndonville, Vt.; Hiram Barnett of Belle Fourche, S. D.; and Mrs. Hattie Barnett Haggood of South Columbia, N. H., a sister, opened the door and walked in. It had been fourteen years since Hiram Barnett had been east. He is a farmer on a large scale. On his way here he took two carloads of sheep to Omaha, Neb., market, and on his return trip his oldest son, will meet him with two carloads, making the flock of six thousand left. He also has other interests, one being part owner in a company formed for irrigation. Mr. Barnett left home when nineteen years of age, and has been wonderfully prosperous in his efforts. The other brothers are well to do farmers, as is also Mr. Haggood. They left for New Hampshire, Thursday.

An excellent polish for floors and oilcloths is made of equal parts of melted candles and turpentine. The candle ends that are left from decorating the dining room table are excellent for this purpose.

TOOTH CLEANING ADVICE.

How to Prevent the Accumulation of Tartar With Little Trouble.

Thoroughly cleansing the teeth once a month will do much to prevent the accumulation of tartar and keep them white and sound. For this purpose powdered pumice should be placed on every washstand, with the definite knowledge of the harm it can do if used too often, for applied frequently it will wear away the enamel. There is absolutely no danger of this, however, if it is not put on oftener than once a month.

To give this treatment properly a wooden stick like that used on the nails is necessary, and 5 cents' worth of pumice, powdered, is of course, an essential. A bit of absorbent cotton improves the application, and a few drops of lemon juice are better than water.

The work may be done to best advantage a person should stand before a mirror. The cotton, a mere wisp, must be twisted about the end of the stick, which is then dipped into the lemon juice. From that it is stuck into the pumice and rubbed directly upon the teeth.

It is useless to rub the centers of the teeth, for almost without exception, they are white. It is on the edges, the sides and the tops at the gums and next to the other teeth that tartar and discolorations accumulate, and so it is these places that must be whitened. The stick, constantly put into lemon juice and pumice, should be confined to those regions as near the gums as can be without loosening the flesh. It must be understood that if this cleansing is done carelessly the gums will be loosened from their places and a diseased condition result.

When all the teeth have been rubbed in this way a careful rinsing must be given the mouth, as the teeth should not be brushed immediately. Rather should a weak solution of lime-water be used, for lime counteracts the effect of acid. When all the grains are removed a soft brush may be applied, taking care that all cracks between the teeth are cleaned.

Nothing will do more to prevent the accumulation of tartar than the continued use of lime or soda water. The latter may be mixed as required, a teaspoonful of the bicarbonate to half a glass of water. After brushing the teeth at night the mouth must be rinsed with either of the preparations counteracting the effect of acid juices upon the enamel. It may be used also in the morning.

BABY'S OUTFIT BOX.

How to Make a Pretty Receptacle For the Infant's Clothes.

In order to make a baby's box get a clean, strong wooden box from the grocery, if possible one with a hinged top, or put the top on with two small hinges. The box should be about three feet long, two feet wide and two feet deep. Line it with unbleached muslin, first with a pretty flowered denim. The inside of the lid should be covered with muslin, then with denim, and a strip eight inches wide may be put on to form pockets to hold the articles of the baby. The outside of the box may be covered with denim or matting.

If you cover it with denim pad the top of the box well and it will make a comfortable seat. Fasten the covering on with brass headed tacks and get two brass handles for the ends of the box. The baby's slippers may be kept in the box, its basket and other things. A strawberry crate makes a pretty box for holding a baby's outfit. Take a smooth new crate, paint it white or pale blue and line it inside with either blue gingham or white cambric. The lid of this may be finished inside with pockets and cushions outside. This box will not gather as much dust as the other one described and for that reason may be preferred.

How to Make a Hanging Bookshelf.

To make a hanging bookshelf cut three boards ten inches wide and two feet long. Bore a hole in each corner of the three boards, also in center ends, size of the cord which is to pass through them. Use eight yards of cord. To put the shelves together pass the cord through the holes and tie a good knot under each hole so that the knot will not slip through. Get the knots in just the right places to have the shelves hang even. Begin tying at bottom shelf and go up and around. The shelves are nice if stained with mahogany or cherry color. After stain has dried varnish.

How to Keep Fruit Cake Moist.

To keep a fruit cake moist fill the hole of the cake with brandy and cover the entire cake with paraffin paper. If the cake has not been baked in a turk's head mold, the liquor can be poured over the surface before the oiled paper is put on. When there is sign of drying out more of the brandy can be added from time to time. This treatment actually makes a fruit cake better at the end of a year than when first baked. To depend upon time alone for improved flavor means certain disappointment.

How to Train the Eyebrows.

Eyebrows may be trained more readily than is generally thought. If thin and scrawny, make it a matter of routine to rub olive oil into them thoroughly each night. Persistence is the price of success. If the hairs of the eyebrows do not lie smooth, gentle brushing with the use of sweet oil will soon coax them into order.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Herrick C. Davis.

Herrick C. Davis, one of the best known citizens of Oxford County, died at his home in Norway Sunday forenoon, only four days after the death of his wife, after a married life of more than sixty-three years. Mrs. Davis sustained a paralytic shock about two weeks since, from the effects of which she died last Wednesday. Mr. Davis was injured his hip badly. Some years since he was run over by a team on the street, and since that time has not been the same man physically that he was before, and at his age and in his enfeebled condition the end coming as it did was no surprise.

Mr. Davis was the son of Benjamin and Ruhamah (Chase) Davis, and was born in Woodstock Nov. 5, 1826. He attended the common schools of the town and Norway Liberal Institute. For some years after attaining his majority he was engaged in business pursuits, but later law with Hon. J. J. Perry, and in 1861 was admitted to the Androscoggin bar. He practiced law for some time at Bryan's Pond, held various town offices, and was representative in the legislature in 1864.

In 1872 he was elected register of probate for Oxford County, and the family removed to Paris Hill, then the county seat. This office he held continuously for twenty years. Later he was appointed judge of the Norway Municipal Court, and removed to Norway, where he has since lived. He held the position of judge of the court for twelve years, and it is a well known fact that as far as his jurisdiction was concerned, no guilty man was ever allowed to escape.

Mr. Davis was always a Republican, and it was as a member of that party that he was chosen to the several offices which he held. He was a member of the Methodist church, a Mason and an Odd Fellow. In temperance work he was always active, and threw the weight of his influence on the right side of all moral questions. He was a genial and companionable man, and has left a host of friends.

As mentioned above, Mr. Davis had been married more than sixty-three years, his wife being Lucy M. Felt of Woodstock. They had two children, Samuel F. Davis, now postmaster at South Paris, and Carrie, wife of Thomas Muirhead, who has always lived at home and cared for her parents.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock A. M. Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Packard of Freeport, have been visiting in town.

Iona Moore has been operated on for appendicitis, at the Central Maine General hospital, at Lewiston.

Among the patients in a certain hospital there was recently one disposed to take a dark view of his chances of recovery. "Cheer up, old man!" admonished the youthful medico attached to the ward wherein the patient lay. "Your symptoms are identical with those of my own case four years ago. I was just as sick you are. Look at me now!"

The patient ran his eyes over the physician's stalwart frame. "What doctor did you have?" he finally asked feebly.

Good Roads and Steam Roller.

In regard to the subject of good roads through the state of Maine, after having ten years of experience at road building, wishes to call the attention of the voters to the fact of working the dirt roads and getting better results at less cost than the gravel roads. These days when good road movements are very popular it has become the fad to shout for macadam roads and this would lead those who give little thought to the subject to believe that gravel and dirt roads are not and cannot be made good. This is a mistaken idea and scientific writers upon road construction, as well as up to date highway superintendents, are proving that a dirt road is a good road if it is properly constructed and rolled and that the cost is much less than the poor dirt roads now common.

It is a very common method of working dirt roads in New York state with a steam roller and has met with great favor and is highly recommended by the highway commissioners and town boards. The highway commission of New York has a special department of town roads under Frank Lyon, deputy, and this department has been engaged in the making and rolling of dirt roads with steam rollers, sending out its experts to advise the town officials and to instruct them in the use of rollers, even going so far as to advise them to hire and pay $10 per day for the use of a steam roller, which would be equal to $14 per day for roller, engine and fuel. It is the opinion of the commission that better results can be obtained by the use of the steam roller in plowing, ripping, grading and scraping by the use of a steam roller. The objection offered by many was the cost. This objection is easy to overcome when the figures are put on paper. If you work your roads with teams you must at least use two teams, often three to operate a roller machine, which would total as follows:

2 teams at $4 per day	$8.00
Operating steam roller with scraper, engine, etc.	$2.50
1 laborer	1.50
500 pounds coal	1.25
Oil and waste	.25
Total	$5.50

Difference in cost per day.....$2.50
That is the apparent saving. The real saving is greater, for a road machine hauled by a steam roller will do half as much more work per day as when hauled by horses, to say a cost of one and a half day's work with team, $12; cost of equal amount of work (one day) by roller $5.50, saving 6.50 for the town. In other words one can save 40 per cent, of the cost for building and maintaining roads.

There is more to be considered than the above. The road machine when hauled by a steam roller can go into ditches where horses could not go, and it can dig ditches of uniform depth and the road of uniform width. You can always widen your road with the roller while with teams you are usually making your road narrower. The material that you put in the road when rolled will stay there and will not be washed back into the ditch. The stones that you now have to rake out, pick up and haul away at a cost almost as great as that of operating the road machine, will be rolled in and become the best part of your road. When you put fresh material on your roads and roll it in you have good roads all the time and horses are not stumbling, rutting and sinking for many days.

To sum it all up, for the same amount of money that you now spend you can have more road and better road. Any road in your town that you can work with teams can be worked better and cheaper with a steam roller. Any road that can be made fit for traffic can be worked with a roller. A wealthy town can do without a roller for it can hire contractors and build macadam roads. A poor town (financially) must work its own roads and must be content with roads that cannot afford to do so except by power, and a roller is the most economical power. If it is economical for New York state to work their dirt roads with steam rollers and scrapers, why is it not economical for the state of Maine to do the same?

The point which the writer wishes to convey is that if the towns through the state of Maine would purchase rollers they could give better roads to the farmers, giving them a chance to get into town with a load, especially in the spring when it is muddy, where it is now practically impossible for them to draw a light wagon, and the farmer is the man that would be benefited. The town purchasing a roller and working their dirt roads with the same.

Central Park Beat Out the Storm.

Deep snow and irregular car service conspired against the Park managers Saturday. A goodly number visited the cozy theatre, Saturday evening, where an excellent picture and song program was given. The motion picture subjects were: "In the Arctics," "The Rabbit Mother-in-Law" and "Her Mother's Mistake." The second named subject was a pure comedy of a rare variety. The poor son-in-law being the unhappy victim of a muscular mother-in-law, soon went "dippy" under the effects of her blows. His strange actions while in the "Arctic storm" cyclone was something on the order of Jekyll and Hyde and extremely funny. The unfortunate man had the sympathy of every male in the audience.

"Her Mother's Mistake" was the feature, and is considered one of the strongest dramatic pictures seen thus far. It is a motion picture of a happy country couple having their courtship cut short by a dashing officer, who dazed both the girl and her mother. The young lady is wedded to the stranger and the country boy goes West to win fame and fortune. Years pass by, the young wife is made blind through an accident, then the husband's love grows cold, and he finally deserts the unfortunate woman. She passes through many touching experiences until her early lover returns with wealth. A special brings back her lost sight through a surgical operation and the story ends in a sea of happiness.

Mrs. Yeaton sang the illustrated songs "What Might Have Been" and "If I Had a Thousand Lives to Live."

Skating followed the pictures and a large number enjoyed the remainder of the evening on the merry wheels.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. AUGUSTE VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wisconsin.

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains downward in both sides, backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have an operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."

Another Operation Avoided. New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. E. J. BOUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

They Kill and Eat Robins.

Sisco, Fla., Feb. 1910.

EDITOR OF NORWAY ADVERTISER:—I am going to write a few words about a subject that gives me a great deal of heartache. There is a wholesale slaughter of robins here among the colored and whites. The man who lives on the other side of us shot nine at one time, picked and ate them. It is not because they are poor people but they love to kill and eat.

I don't know what the law is here about our northern birds, but my heart is broken to see the men from up north come here and shoot the dear birds we prize so much in Maine. There is a man here who lives in Springfield, Mass., that board at a hotel little ways from here who shoot the dear robins, feel badly about it and wish I could do something to make things different. I would write a lot about things that happen here but such a poor writer that I feel as if you would not care for it.

Ed.—Let us know about it. We are sorry Northerners do such things when away from home.

Changes in Laws Affecting Towns.

The legislature last winter stirred the statutes up considerably, and made a number of changes which affect the relations of the towns and the state in one way or another. Our town meetings will shortly be here, and it is well to look at a few of the things done by the legislature, because very few have been able to grasp the full significance of all that was in the large volume issued as the result of the legislative session of 1909.

It may be said to start with, that much of the remodeling of statutes was due to a desire to make the wild lands pay more nearly a proportional part of the general expenses than was possible under existing conditions. To accomplish this constitutionally was a problem on which much thought was expended. The method which was finally adopted included one feature of which legislators have generally fought shy, namely, an increase in the state tax rate. But as that seemed to be the best practical way to get at it, the tax rate was raised, thus levying a larger sum upon the wild lands as well as the other property of the state, and a number of changes were made so that the state should return to the towns in various ways a larger proportion of the tax collected than before.

For some years, including the past year, the rate of the state tax has been three mills. For 1910 it is five mills. This will mean, for instance, that Paris will receive a state tax in 1909 of $4,465.98, but in 1910 it will pay $7,457.11, or almost three thousand dollars more. The same ratio of increase applies to all the towns.

This increase is returned to the towns in a number of ways, more of it in school money than in any other way. The "mill tax," as it is formerly was, for the common school fund, is now a mill and a half, and instead of being distributed as formerly on the sole basis of the population, one-third of it is apportioned on the basis of valuation of the two-thirds on the basis of valuation of the towns. Results thus produced vary somewhat in the several towns. In Paris the effect will be that the town will receive in 1910 about $2400 more than in 1909. At the same time the amount which the town must appropriate for common schools was reduced to the former rate of not less than $20 cents per inhabitant, 37.8.

In the matter of high schools, the aid which a town may receive from the state is increased from $250 to $500.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1910, insane paupers are supported by the state instead of by the towns. This remark may be thrown in here incidentally, not as information but as comment, that the probable effect of this will be some increase of insanity in the state.

The town of Paris, as an illustration, the increase in that basis, and the increased amounts returned by the state to the town in these various ways will be approximately equal, though without going into the matter carefully it is as if the balance this year, as compared with last year, would be slightly against the town.

There have also been some changes made in the state road law, which modify the effect of it somewhat, and at the same time make it more complicated. The provision for setting aside a small percentage of the regular road appropriation for permanent road improvements is repealed, and the state aid for state roads now depends upon the direct appropriation made by the town for that purpose. The amount to be appropriated by the town which the state will match varies on a sliding scale according to the population of the town. In the larger number of the Oxford County towns the amount which may be raised in this way by the town is $400. In the town of Paris it is $600, and in a few of the small towns it is only $200.

The amount which the state will put into the state road fund for every dollar raised in the smaller towns to seventy-five cents for every dollar raised in the large towns and cities. In towns having a valuation of less than $200,000, any sum up to $200 may be raised, and for every dollar the state will apportion two dollars to the town. In towns having a valuation of between $200,000 and $800,000, any sum up to $400 may be raised, and the state will apportion a dollar for every dollar raised. In Paris the town may raise up to $600, and the state will apportion 50 cents for every dollar raised by the town.

There is of course nothing to prevent towns raising larger amounts than those named for state road work, but the state aid will be apportioned only on the amounts as specified in the law. In Paris, for instance, if the town appropriates $600 for state road work, it will receive from the state $600, and if it raises $1000 it will receive no more.

There may be other changes in the laws which the voters should consider before transacting their business at the annual meetings, but those noted are some of the most important.

Why does a horse rush into his own stall, if he be in the barn is on fire? Because that is where he is naturally going when he can, always, and hence he feels safest. In case of fire, if possible, close the stalls, leaving the horses out on the floor. They may be much more easily managed there.

Maintenance of Beef Cows.

At the Illinois experiment station the corn plant, fed either in the form of shock corn or silage, supplemented with a limited amount of clover hay, proved satisfactory rations for wintering beef breeding cows. Under the conditions of this experiment silage produced 41 per cent greater gain in live weight than an equal acreage of shock corn.

Winter Vacations.

Considerable has been said in the newspapers of late about making Maine a winter resort. Its popularity is fairly established as a summer playground and there is no really good reason why it should be deserted by pleasure seekers in the winter season.

Vacationists who come to Maine in the summer and go to Florida or Southern California in the winter must necessarily realize a certain degree of monotony so far as the weather conditions with which they come in contact are concerned. Monotony is hardly conducive to the happiness of the vacationists. What he wants is variety; something new and something different; will appeal to him almost every time.

It is this fact of human nature which has started up a new idea along this very line among the English people. It has begun to be a fashionable thing to patronize Switzerland in the winter time. Inns which formerly were closed except in the summer season, are now open to traffic, and often filled through the winter months.

The conditions there supply the variety for which the vacationist is looking, in exactly the same proportions that they would be supplied to the American vacationist if he were to winter among the hills and on the shores of Maine. The summer time delights of the climate of our State are thoroughly understood, appreciated and advertised; that attention is being attracted to the equally attractive though far different charms of the winter season, is a hopeful indication.

Let no American pleasure seeker trouble to go to Switzerland for his winter pastime. He can find enough to suit him to his abode among us in the Pine Tree State.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares that there are two ways of checking the ravages of tuberculosis among school children. The first way is to instruct every school child about the dangers of the disease, and to show them how they themselves may prevent tuberculosis in their home. The second method is to establish open-air schools for all children who have tuberculosis or who are suspected cases, segregating them from the healthy children.
